

Scott Brown is a technical support administrator with iATN.

Graduated Arizona Automotive Institute in 1983, he is an ASE certified master automotive technician and owner of a large independent repair facility located in Southern California.

In 1994 he started one of the first Automotive Technician computer bulletin boards in the U.S.

With his automotive experience, he has provided a unique perspective in the development of iATN and all of the technical resources placed online since 1995.

In addition to enjoying an automotive diagnostic challenge his hobbies include computers, digital photography and auto racing.
